- For anyone interested in theology, religion teachers, and pastoral care workers
- Suggestions and inspiration for catechism and all learning situations

The Bible contains stories that are just as thrilling as any mystery novel. But who truly knows this rich book, more copies of which have been sold than any other in the world? Mirjam Schambeck's book makes biblical texts accessible for people today. She delves into twenty key texts from the Bible, ten from the Old Testament and ten from the New, by directly contrasting interpretations of today with interpretations from the past. This involves examination of modern literature and films, pictures and music, as well as storytelling and creative writing.

About the author

Mirjam Schambeck, doctor of theology, born in 1966, is professor for Religious Education and it's didactics and teaches at the faculty Catholic Theology at the University of Bamberg.
