- A harmonious mix of recipes and DIY for home use
- For every season: Easter or Christmas, summer or winter
- Special design in magazine style
- Winner of the 2018 Garden & Home Blog Award in the area of »Home & Living«

Silke Rothenburger has many wonderful ideas about how we can make our life and home more beautiful for us and our loved ones. She offers uncomplicated recipes for delicious little things and do-it-yourself ideas that let the set table radiate – no matter whether in summer or winter, at Easter, birthdays or Christmas: There is always a reason for creating a little island in everyday life for ourselves and our fellow human beings with much love: a place to enjoy community and a sense of emotional security.

About the author

Silke Rothenburger lives with her family in Backnang, a little town near Stuttgart. She works as a secretary at a grammar school. In her leisure time, she cooks, bakes, does handicrafts and photographs as a creative balance to her office job. Already as a child, she was constantly at her grandfather's little bakery and especially liked to be in the baking room. She sees her "House No 37" blog as the ideal connection between all of her hobbies. As with the blog, she also wants to inspire other people with her book.
