- competent, accurate, practice-oriented
- with many concrete examples and suggestions
- takes into account different age groups

Children grieve not only when a person or a pet dies, but also the loss of a stuffed animal or when a friend moves away. The author describes in a sensitive, competent and helpful way how parents and daycare, kindergarten, and elementary school teachers can help children deal with such losses.

About the author

Christine Fleck-Bohaumilitzky, born in 1955, is a theologian, pastoral adviser in pastoral and palliative care, supervisor and founding member of the Bundesverband Trauerbegleitung e.V. (Federal Association for grief counseling). She is married, has two adult daughters and lives near Munich.
